4. Heat a non-stick pan over medium-high heat. Add a small amount of oil or butter of your choice.
5. Scoop the batter into the pan -- about 60ml / 1/4 cup per pancake -- and gently shape into a circle.
6. Cook for 2 minutes until the surface looks dry and set, then flip. Cook for a further 1 minute until fully cooked through.
7. Repeat with remaining batter.

8. Serve with maple syrup, yoghurt and fresh fruit of your choice.

Enjoy!

Lemony Lentil & Chard Soup

This satisfying lemony bowlful was inspired by the lentil soup served at the now-closed Lebanese restaurant La Shish in West Bloomfield, Michigan. It keeps well but will thicken, so you may want to thin it with a bit of water or broth when reheating. Serve with warm whole-wheat pita.

Frangipane (Almond Cream)

Frangipane, a staple of classic French pastry, is a creamy, sweet, almondy filling that’s surprisingly easy to make and has many uses. This frangipane recipe uses simple ingredients like butter, sugar, eggs, and almond flour to ensure the almond flavor shines through. Spread frangipane into a tart shell, pipe it into croissant dough to make a decadent breakfast pastry, or spread it onto brioche to make Bostock.

Allergy info

gluten-free, raw/no-bake, soy-free option, nut-free option, refined sugar-free

Instructions

In a high-speed blender, blend the oats until a fine flour forms. Set aside.

In a large bowl, combine the oil, peanut butter, maple syrup, and vanilla and beat with a hand mixer until smooth. Add the almond flour, oat flour, and salt and beat again until combined. Fold in the chocolate chips.

Roll the dough intc small balls (about 1 tablespoon of dough each). If chocolate chips fall to the bottom of the bowl, press them back into the dough when rolling. Place the fihished bites on a plate lined with parchment paper.

Freeze the bites for 5 to 10 minutes, or until firm. Store the bites in the freezer in a freezer bag for quick and easy snacks.

Tips

For a nut-free version, simply swap sunflower seed butter for the peanut butter and more oat flour for the almond flour (add a splash of non-dairy milk if the dough is a bit dry). Both versions work just fine.

For a soy-free option, use soy-free chocolate chips (such as Enjoy Life brand)
